□ CALHOUN'S BARBECUE

Knoxville

Visit the original location – there are nine across East Tennessee - and dive into a slab of award-winning, hickory-smoked, baby-back ribs.

□ COUCH'S BBQ

Ooltewah

A brick pit, hand-turning and basting with recipes passed down since 1946 is the process with tasty results. So tasty that they were included in Southern Living's Top 50 Barbecue Joints.

□ FIREHOUSE BBQ

Johnson City

Authentically smoked barbecue specialties, homemade sides and desserts all combine for the ultimate barbecue experience in Johnson City.

□ PIG & CHICK

Rogersville

Hailed as the Best Barbeque by Tennessee Magazine, Pig & Chick offers an extensive list of barbecue heaven. From sandwiches loaded with pulled pork to a full brisket dinner with your choice of sides like loaded baked potatoes, fried okra, or red skinned potato salad for instance, you'll never walk away hungry at this establishment.

□ RIDGEWOOD BARBECUE

Bluff City

The saucy, smoky ham and the sides are what keep locals and visitors alike coming back for more.

□ STICKY FINGERS RIBHOUSE

Chattanooga

Heralded as the best barbecue in the Southeast, Sticky Fingers is famous for their Memphis-style ribs, wings and barbecue all served in a relaxed atmosphere.

□ SUGAR'S RIBS

Chattanooga

Yes, the smoked spareribs are famously moist on the inside and crunchy on the outside, but you'd be remiss not to try the barbecue chicken.

□ THE GIGGLIN' PIG

Newport

Meats are smoked on-site and visitors would be remiss if they didn't order at least two of the homemade sides this establishment offers. Half-rack ribs, pulled pork sandwiches and plates, and even smoked bologna leaves each guest full yet craving more.
